

Storm Drain Marking Program

April 22, 2010, Earth Day

Storm Drains on your street could have yellow fish painted beside them.

The yellow fish are there to remind us that storm drains on our roadways empty directly into local streams and eventually into the Columbia. We need to keep harmful things out of these storm drains. Storm Drain Marking is a conservation and education project developed by Fisheries and Oceans Canada.

The fish are will be painted by us, local volunteers, residents and children who care about our local streams. We will then hand out brochures door-to-door throughout the community to explain this valuable program. We are planning on launching this event on April, 22, 2010, Earth Day. You can help, too, please contact Jennifer (250-231-2954) if you would like to volunteer for this fun event!
